Speakman Company has been at the forefront of the plumbing industry since 1869. Its showerheads, faucets, and safety equipment are found in most major hotels, hospitals, educational institutions, government buildings, and factories across the world.

The company is recognized as a leader in specification-quality plumbing fittings and electronic faucets. It was at the front of the market transformation into modern-day showering and revolutionized water-bearing safety equipment more than 50 years ago. In 2001, it launched the formation of three Speakman Autonomous Business Units offering a wide range of shower accessories, emergency eyewashes, and faucets.

Speakman Company is successful because it continually follows its original mission of building quality, innovative, and durable products. The company believes in working with the customer, viewing the interaction as a partnership. The passage of additional free trade agreements would lead to an "improved economy and more American employment," says Mary Ann Juliano-Summers, international accounts manager. "International trade is the solution to opening markets for more American companies."
