Vivísimo's mission is to help organizations maximize the business value of their information through innovations in search and discovery technology. The company's founders first developed new ways to categorize search results through computer science research at Carnegie Mellon University.

Building on its research discoveries and innovations, Vivísimo was the first to offer enterprise social search, which lets knowledge workers share information and collaborate by tagging, ranking, and annotating search results.

Vivísimo's customers are some of the most visionary organizations in the world, spanning government, the Fortune 500, and academia. Vivísimo Velocity Search Platform customers can be found in government as well as in industries such as aerospace and defense, consumer goods, pharmaceuticals and life science, publishing, electronics, and manufacturing. The company boasts nearly 200 customers, and approximately 20% of its sales are due to international trade.

According to Vincent Thomas, vice president, International,
 “International markets are vital to our success and growth at Vivísimo.”
